Break 'not a holiday'

CITY COUNCIL

Wyatt suggests a shorter break for summer

A city councillor says just because city council is now on a break from meetings, it does not mean councillors are simply taking a break.

"It's not a holiday right after the last council meeting," said Coun. Devi Sharma.

A new motion by Coun. Russ Wyatt called for council's summer prorogue to be no longer than the period from the August long weekend until the September long weekend.

Council will break from all meetings from July 15 until Sept. 8, but Sharma said she is worried the public has a misconception that councillors simply don't work during that break.

"There is much work to be done still, it's just not committee work, but there are lots of other meetings in the community," said Sharma.

"Of course people want some downtime with their families, but trust me nobody is taking two or three weeks off."

Wyatt said he agrees the prorogue is not just a long break, but still thinks it is too long.

"The concern I have is that this is actually impacting our ability to do the business of council," said Wyatt.

"Unlike Parliament and unlike legislature we do a lot of our business in the summer just by the nature of municipal government, in terms of building and construction."

Committee meetings happening before the last council meeting in July are being forced to deal with too many issues because of the long break after that meeting, said Wyatt.

"All other committees flow to council, so all those committees get backed up as well."

Wyatt's motion will be dealt with in the fall. DAVE BAXTER/METRO

Manitoban to compete for lacrosse world title

Don Jacks hopes to raise sport's profile

Winnipegger Don Jacks will play in an upcoming lacrosse world championship in the U.S. DAVE BAXTER/FOR METRO

A Winnipeg lacrosse player is about to be the first Manitoba player in more than two decades to play at a lacrosse world championship.

Don Jacks, 33, will compete in the World Indoor Lacrosse Championships Sept. 18 to 26 in Syracuse, N.Y., but not for the country that he currently calls home.

Jacks has dual citizenship and has been invited to play for the German team.

The last Manitoban to play in a world lacrosse championship did it way back in 1985.

As executive director of Lacrosse Manitoba, Jacks said his biggest responsibility is introducing the sport to young people, and he hopes his trip to play in the tournament gives the game even more exposure here.

"I'm using this opportunity to show the Manitoba kids that there is a way to get out and make a successful career playing lacrosse," said Jacks.

"One of the things we regularly do is go to communities all over Manitoba and just get the sticks in kids' hands."

He also said he goes to a lot of First Nations communities to get kids there into the sport.

Because of his age, Jacks believes he will peak as a player soon and he may have to give up the game competitively, so the chance to play in the upcoming tournament would be a great way to end his time in the sport.

"It's exciting, and I think we are feeling pretty confident about how we will do in our pool."

Jacks has to pay for all his of travel costs to go to both Germany to train and the U.S. to compete, and a GoFundMe page has been started to help cover some of the costs.

The page can be found at gofundme.com/y732eg.

Police board seeks indigenous council nominations

The Winnipeg Police Board is looking for nominations for its new Indigenous Council on Policing and Crime Prevention.

Created by board members by resolution last December, the council will provide members with advice and recommendations on how it can better engage with indigenous people and how it can address indigenous people's safety concerns in the priorities, objectives and policies the board sets for the Winnipeg Police Service.

"Indigenous people are disproportionately likely to come into contact with the justice system," said board chair Coun. Scott Gillingham, in a release.

"This council is one way we can tap into the community's ideas and expertise on how to change that."

Nominations will be accepted until Aug. 12 and the membership will be announced in September.

Nomination forms are available at winnipegpoliceboard.ca.

Two men stabbed downtown

Police have launched an investigation after two men were found stabbed in Winnipeg's downtown early Friday.

The first victim was found near the corner of Portage Avenue and Carlton Street around 3 a.m. He was rushed to hospital in critical condition, and has since been upgraded to serious condition.

Police found the second victim in the same area, also suffering from stab wounds. He was taken to hospital in unstable condition.

Police are still working to determine whether the two stabbings are connected. METRO

Program aims to help grads find jobs

More support is coming to university students getting started in their careers.

Jobs and the Economy Minister Kevin Chief released a program called the First Jobs Strategy, which includes the creation of a $1.5-million fund to help recent grads find a foothold in their chosen field.

The fund and strategy will put in place an employment connection program that will include a dedicated First Jobs Strategy intake co-ordinator, who will be the first contact for recent grads looking to enter the workforce and connect graduates to job resources and online tools.

"Our economy is growing and Manitoba businesses want to make sure our young people have the chance to be a part of it," said Chief. "Working together, we will make sure they have the exposure to the opportunities waiting for them, connections with future employers and the support they need as they start their careers."

This summer, Chief will travel to several communities to speak with stakeholders about the First Jobs Strategy. METRO

TRANSIT

Bidding for second phase of BRT open

The City of Winnipeg is looking for proposals from builders to start work on the second phase of the Bus Rapid Transit system.

A request for proposals (RFP) for construction of the Southwest Rapid Transitway and the Pembina Highway Underpass Project is now open.

"The release of the RFP marks a significant milestone for the project," said Winnipeg Transit director Dave Wardrop.

"When completed, Stage 2 of the Southwest Transitway will allow Winnipeg Transit to bypass heavy traffic volumes on Pembina Highway, leading to greater on-time reliability, higher travel speeds and improved service to the surrounding neighbourhoods."

The projects are being built in the same public-private partnership manner as the Disraeli Bridge and the Chief Peguis Trail extension from Henderson Highway to Lagimodière Boulevard.

Under the model, the winning bidder will be responsible for developing the design of the project, constructing it, financing it and maintaining it over a 30-year period.

The RFP will be open until next spring, with the winning bidder announced in mid-2016.

Construction is expected to start next summer, and buses should hit the new infrastructure by April 2020. METRO

Lighting the way home for woman

DISAPPEARANCE

Crowd walks for hope while police struggle with few clues

Elisha Dacey
Metro | Winnipeg

Hundreds of family members, friends and strangers walked this weekend in hopes of "lighting the way home" for a woman who has been missing for more than a week.

Supporters of Thelma Krull gathered at Kildonan East Collegiate and walked down Concordia Avenue with flashlights Saturday night.

"My mom is a fabulous lady who would have been there to help the same," wrote Lisa Besser in an email to media. "She held a very positive attitude. We are holding the same for her safe return home to us."

Police say they are at a loss to explain the disappearance of a 57-year-old woman, despite an intensive search.

"We are really grasping at straws right now. We don't know what the circumstances are," Const. Eric Hofley said. "We are hoping anybody with any type of information comes forward."

Krull was last seen on the morning of July 11, when she left her suburban home to go for a hike. She had planned to pick up a cake later on. She had no history of going missing, Hofley said.

Police and volunteers have scoured the area but found little to help. Surveillance footage captured a brief shot of Krull walking near her home, and her glasses were discovered Tuesday near Valley Gardens Community Centre.

Police released a photograph of two cyclists who were in the area at the time. The grainy picture shows one cyclist with what appears to be a tennis racket. Hofley said the two are not considered suspects and are simply being sought in the hope they might have seen Krull.

The homicide unit has taken the lead on the case, although Hofley insisted it is still being treated as a missing-person file.

Krull is five-foot-four and 170 pounds, with short dyed-blond hair with purple streaks. WITH FILES FROM THE CANADIAN PRESS

Former gang members seek police partnership

NEIGHBOURHOOD PATROL

Police don't always respond to reports from their group

Shane Gibson
Metro | Winnipeg

It's work that's not always appreciated — his crew have been called rats, bitches, and punks while on patrol — but the former gang member who now heads up the North End Ambassador Program has no plans on slowing down.

In fact Kenneth Harry wants to expand and find new partners, including Winnipeg police.

"This program has never had a partnership with police and I'd really like to try and establish one with them," said the 35-year-old who took over as the program's manager in March after patrolling for a year.

"Because there's a lot of meth houses and there's recently a house that's started selling inhalants — the sniff — and it's just right across from the Neechi Makwa School.

"We're out there everyday and people tell us about the things in the neighbourhood."

But because the program, which has been operating under the umbrella of the North End Community Renewal Corporation since 2008, is mandated as a non-confrontational, non-interdiction street patrol, there's not much they can do other than keep logs of what they see and try to report crimes to the police. Harry said the police haven't always been overly trusting of a reformed gang member and his dozen or so street patrols made up mostly of young people from the neighbourhood.

"I'd like to change that," he said.

To that end, Harry and his crew have been meticulously keeping logs of everything they encounter during their eight-hour daily walks through the St. John's, William Whyte, Dufferin, Lord Selkirk Park and Point Douglas neighbourhoods.

Every needle or crack pipe they pick up, every new gang tag they see on a garage door, every time they have to call an ambulance for someone they find in medical distress is recorded at the end of the day and Harry will show the three years of data at a community meeting he's planning with police and other community organizations later this year.

He's also making sure patrols get extra training in things like first-aid and non-violent crisis intervention — for the first time in the program's history.

"I want to reach out to and say hey, this is what we're doing and this is what we're about," he said. "We're out there all the time ... that's why I'd like to have more of a communication with Winnipeg police or someone that would like to consider supporting us."

Mail-bomb victim recovering after losing hand

A Winnipeg lawyer who lost a hand when a package exploded in her office says she is home and healing.

Maria Mitousis has posted a statement on Facebook saying she has suffered physically and emotionally, but will heal and eventually go back to work.

She says she plans to keep updating people on her recovery.

She also thanks her family and colleagues and says her belief in the inherent goodness of people has not been shaken.

Mitousis, 38, was injured two weeks ago and police later detonated two other bombs also discovered in mailed packages.

Police have charged an ex-husband of one of her clients with several offences, including attempted murder.

They allege Guido Amsel, 49, was targeting his ex-wife and the lawyers who were involved in a lengthy legal dispute between them. He's accused of putting explosive compound in digital voice recorders and mailing them to different locations.

"This terrible thing that has happened has not dampened my spirits," said Mitousis.

"If nothing else, this experience has reinforced my practice of gratitude and I just have so much to be grateful for."

She says she has received well wishes and donations from strangers and can't thank everyone enough.

Police earlier confirmed she lost her right hand in the blast and suffered other injuries to her left hand, face, chest and thighs. She posted a photo of her bandaged hand on a pillow a friend gave her in the hospital. It reads "be amazing."

"The message is clear: We all have the opportunity to be amazing to each other so let's keep doing that."

Mitousis says her cat Figaro hasn't left her side since she has been home.

"I think he is guarding me ... I am truly surrounded by love."

NORTH END

Group cleans up

With their neon orange shirts it's not hard to find North End Ambassadors in a crowd.

Both paid and volunteer members from the program have been patrolling North End streets for the last seven years and they're not there to stop crime; they're there to clean up the after effects and try to prevent it from happening in the first place.

"Basically what we are is eyes and ears for the community," explained program manager Kenneth Harry, who started volunteering with the organization a little over a year ago.

The team's patrols meet every morning at 9 a.m. at the Selkirk Avenue office of the North End Community Renewal Corporation, who run the program, and after a quick meeting they hit the streets on foot and sometimes on bike for an eight-hour shift.

A big part of the day, according to Harry, is spent picking up and disposing of crack pipes and needles left strewn around the neighbourhood from the night before. Members also work closely with 311 to report things like illegal dumping and bulky waste left in backlanes that can attract arsonists. They also do safe walks with area kids who might otherwise be bullied and also keep an eye out for people in medical distress.

When Metro spoke to members last Friday afternoon crews had already called in paramedics twice that morning for people found unconscious under the hot summer sun.

Patrol Shanna Copenace, 25, said knowing she's helping her community is what led her to start volunteering this spring. She's since been hired on full-time.

"It's the best job I've ever had," she said. "I just like helping in the community and making it safe in the North End because there's a lot of stuff that happens around here."

The program is always looking for more volunteers (an honorarium is provided) , and full-time positions are also sometimes available.

Anyone interested in applying can email resumes to neapteamlead@necrc.org.

ONTARIO

Mulcair starts early campaign swing

Tom Mulcair is jumping the starting gun for this fall's federal election, hitting the campaign trail this week in the crucial battleground of Ontario.

The NDP leader is launching an eight-day tour on Monday designed to showcase his team, his policies and his party's momentum in the province.

Ontario accounts for more than a third of 338 seats that will be up for grabs on Oct. 19.

The tour will target ridings the NDP says it believes it can steal away from the ruling Conservatives.

There'll be no plane or buses, but apart from that, the planned tour has all the appearance of a full-on election campaign: two events each day, rounds of local media interviews and daily media opportunities, capped almost every evening by partisan rallies.

The tour kicks off Monday in downtown Toronto and will take Mulcair to Oshawa, Mississauga, Scarborough, Cambridge, Hamilton, Stratford, Chatham, Windsor, Amherstburg, London, Sarnia, Waterloo, Brampton, Thunder Bay, Sudbury, Sturgeon Falls and North Bay.

"It's definitely an opportunity for us to stress-test our campaign and to make the case that there is a choice," says Anne McGrath, the NDP campaign director. "What we're trying to tell people is ... if you want to make a change, we have the leader, the plan and the team."

Along the way, Mulcair will talk up some of the policies he's been rolling out over the past year — on child care, small business, agriculture, infrastructure and public transit.

And he'll showcase some of the candidates the NDP hopes will knock off Conservative incumbents, among them former provincial NDP leader Howard Hampton, who's taking on Natural Resources Minister Greg Rickford in Kenora, city councillor Diane Freeman who's taking on Tory MP Peter Braid in Waterloo, pastor Alex Wilson who's gunning for Tory MP Roxanne James in Scarborough Centre and teacher Mary Fowler who'll try to unseat Tory MP Colin Carrie in Oshawa. End of AIDS in sight

HIV/AIDS

Conference to hear 'last piece of the puzzle'

Matt Kieltyka
Metro | Vancouver

Dr. Julio Montaner says the end of the AIDS epidemic is within reach. JENNIFER GAUTHIER/FOR METRO

The debate will soon be over.

One of the world's foremost authorities on HIV/AIDS says that by the time experts leave Vancouver at the end of a milestone international conference this week there can be no disputing the path to eradicating the disease.

Thousands of experts have convened or the 8th International AIDS Society Conference of HIV Pathogenesis, Treatment & Prevention from July 19 to 22.

Dr. Julio Montaner, clinical director of the B.C. Centre for Excellence in HIV/AIDS, said he championed Vancouver to host this conference because research being presented will, once and for all, silence critics of the Treatment as Prevention model he pioneered and first presented on the same stage in 1996. The made-in-B.C. model advocates the use of highly active antiretroviral therapy (HAART) to suppress a patient's viral load — allowing them to live relatively healthy lives and dramatically decreasing the odds of them spreading the disease.

Last week, the UN credited the model with a pivotal role when it the agency announced it has met its millennial development goal of halting the spread of HIV/AIDS. Still, many places (such as Canada) have yet to endorse the model.

Montaner says two new studies being presented this week will definitively answer the few remaining questions about the effectiveness of the model he pitched at the height of the AIDS epidemic.

"That is the last piece of the puzzle we needed," Montaner told Metro. "This conference should give us the scientific consensus we need to go to governments and tell them there is nowhere to hide. 'You need to endorse it, fund it and implement it. We need to end this epidemic.'"

Trump's controversy shtick faces greatest test

POLITICS

Real estate tycoon says McCain not a war hero

In one of the multiple books he's written about himself, Donald Trump lays out a secret of his success: be outrageous, be controversial and get lots of attention.

That old formula from his business career is now undergoing an unprecedented trial in the laboratory of a U.S. presidential campaign and the result could include more controversy than desired by even the most boastful billionaire.

Some fellow Republicans began urging Trump to apologize or drop out of the race over the weekend after he made fun of Sen. John McCain, his recent nemesis, for having been a prisoner of war.

The sudden eruption of opprobrium let loose the bubbling, weeks-old frustration among the Republican establishment that a man President Barack Obama once referred to as a carnival barker might transform their presidential contest into a circus. Any doubt over the Republican National Committee's desire for him to disappear was erased by its decision to scold him in a formal press release.

But Trump is having none of it. Not only did he refuse to apologize to McCain — he hit him even harder Sunday. He said it's the Arizona senator who should apologize, because veterans' services are so poor in the U.S.

The spat with McCain began after Trump, in his presidential campaign launch speech, referred to undocumented Mexicans as rapists, criminals and drug-dealers.

The party's more moderate faction fumed that such talk, while possibly thrilling some of their grassroots primary audiences, would cause long-term damage for the party with the fast-growing Hispanic community.

McCain jumped in and accused Trump of "firing up the crazies."

Ex-president Bush leaves Maine hospital after breaking bone

Former President George H.W. Bush was released from a Maine hospital on Sunday, four days after the 91-year-old fell at his summer home and broke a bone in his neck.

Bush spokesman Jim McGrath said that "a very grateful" Bush returned home to Kennebunkport from Maine Medical Center after treatment for a fractured vertebra.

"He is in good enough condition that they can continue his recovery at home," McGrath told The Associated Press.

Doctors say Bush didn't suffer nerve damage when he fell Wednesday. They said they anticipate the 41st president will recover fully in three or four months.

Shooter's family says he suffered from depression

The family of the gunman who killed four Marines and a sailor in Chattanooga says he had suffered from depression for many years and "was not the son we knew and loved."

"It grieves us beyond belief to know that his pain found its expression in this heinous act of violence," the family of Muhammad Youssef Abdulazeez said in a statement issued Saturday through a lawyer.

Law enforcement officials did not return calls seeking comment on the family's assertion that Abdulazeez was suffering from depression.

Counterterrorism investigators, meanwhile, continued to interview Abdulazeez's acquaintances and delve into his months-long visit to Jordan last year, looking for clues to who or what might have influenced him and set off the bloodshed Thursday.

The 24-year-old Kuwait-born Abdulazeez opened fire at a military recruiting office and a Navy-Marine operations centre a few miles apart. Family members said they are co-operating with the investigation.

YEMEN

Rebels shell town

Shiite rebels and their allies in Yemen randomly shelled a town Sunday outside of Aden after losing control of some of the port city's neighbourhoods, killing at least 45 people and wounding 120, officials said.

The violence highlighted the bloody chaos of the civil war gripping the Arab world's poorest country, which also has been the target of Saudi-led, U.S.-backed airstrikes since late March.

A leader with the Shiite rebels, known as Houthis, denied shelling Dar Saad, a town just north of Aden and long home to fighters resisting their advances. But Yemeni medical officials and a doctor with an international aid organization said the shelling clearly came from the north and east of Dar Saad — areas under rebel control.

Aden, the scene of some of the war's fiercest ground battles, saw Saudi-backed troops and fighters seize from the Houthis some of its neighbourhoods and its international airport last week. Sunday's shelling in Dar Saad appeared to be a way to both punish those resisting the Houthis, as well as halt the advance of their opponents.

Yemeni medical and military officials said hundreds of residents fled Dar Saad amid the shelling as ambulance rushed through the streets, sirens wailing. They said the shelling killed at least 45 people and wounded 120, all believed to be civilians.

The officials spoke on condition of anonymity as they weren't authorized to brief journalists.

Hassan Boucenine, the head of Doctors Without Borders in Yemen, called the situation in Dar Saad "very, very difficult." He said his medical facilities had received 50 wounded people and 25 corpses.

"There will be more," he said.

Still ready to use military force against Iran: Secretary

U.S. Defence Secretary Ash Carter said Sunday he has no expectation of persuading Israeli leaders to drop their opposition to the Iran nuclear deal but will instead emphasize that the accord imposes no limits on what Washington can do to ensure the security of Israel and Arab allies.

"Our ability to carry out that strategy is unchanged," Carter told reporters aboard his plane en route to Tel Aviv.

The Obama administration reserves the right to use military force against Iran if necessary, he added, although the nuclear deal is intended to preclude that by resolving the issue diplomatically.

Carter is scheduled to meet with Israeli Defence Minister Moshe Yaalon on Monday and with Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu on Tuesday before travelling to Saudi Arabia and Jordan to consult on the implications of the Iran deal and to assess progress in the regional campaign against the Islamic State of Iraq and the Levant (ISIL).

> "I'm not going to change anybody's mind in Israel.

> U.S. defense secretary

One of the bases used for U.S.-led training and arming of moderate Syrian rebels is in Jordan, and the Jordanian air force has carried out strikes against ISIL militants in Syria. One Jordanian pilot was captured and killed by the militants.

Netanyahu has been harshly critical of the Iran nuclear deal, asserting that it clears the way for Iran to build nuclear weapons that would threaten Israel's existence and ultimately diminish U.S. and global security.

"I'm not going to change anybody's mind in Israel," Carter said in the interview. "We can agree to disagree."

In his remarks, Carter repeatedly mentioned that the Iran deal places no limitations on the U.S. defence strategy or its military presence in the Middle East, which includes warplanes, an aircraft carrier and tens of thousands of troops.

He gave no indication, however, that the Pentagon plans immediate moves to bolster that presence, which is anchored by the Navy's 5th fleet headquarters in Bahrain, an air operations centre in Qatar and a military headquarters in Kuwait running the war against ISIL in Iraq and Syria.

Pro surfer filmed fighting off shark attack

Knocked off his board by an attacking shark, a surfer punched the creature before escaping unharmed during the televised finals of a world surfing competition in South Africa on Sunday.

Three-time world champion surfer Mick Fanning, an Australian, was struck by the shark from behind and knocked into the water as he sat on his board waiting for his turn during the JBay Open in Jeffrey's Bay in the Eastern Cape Province.

As he scans the water, two fins appear, and with a splash he disappears under the surface. He is next seen furiously trying to swim to safety before a rescuer pulls him out of the water.

"I felt something grab, get stuck in my leg rope and instantly jump away. And it just kept coming at my board," Fanning said, once safe on the rescue boat.

Fanning said at first he swam away but then decided to defend himself and turned to punch the shark in the back.

Fire crews contain California highway wildfire

A rare summer storm allowed firefighters to contain 60 per cent of a wildfire that swept across a California interstate highway, torching vehicles and sending people running for their lives.

Light rain and moist air dampened the blaze in the mountainous Cajon Pass, 89 kilometres northeast of Los Angeles, the main artery between Southern California and Las Vegas.

The wind-driven fire was sparked Friday afternoon below the elevated lanes of Interstate 15. Pushed by 64 km/h winds, it raced up a hill and onto the traffic-clogged freeway, trapping hundreds of people amid a cauldron of smoke, flames and ash.

The flames destroyed 20 vehicles on the freeway before heading into the neighbouring community of Baldy Mesa, where it burned seven homes and destroyed 44 more vehicles.

In all, the fire burned about 22 square kilometres.

Denturist
How often should dentures be replaced?
Dentures should be replaced approximately every 5 years, says Hartley Zelcer of Zelcer Denture Clinic. Natural teeth can wear down and stain through time and so do your dentures. Tissue in your mouth goes through constant changes attributed to aging, weight loss, medications, stress and various other factors. Symptoms such as ringing in the ears, ear aches, headaches, jaw pain and dizzy spells may all be denture related. Dentures should enhance ones face by reducing and softening lines and in many cases can make one look years younger.
The Zelcers reputation has made them one of the most recognized and trusted clinics in the province.

Germany pledges flexibility

GREECE

Debt write-off ruled out by Merkel despite remarks

Chancellor Angela Merkel on Sunday suggested that Germany would show flexibility in negotiating how Greece deals with its massive debt, but again ruled out writing off part of the money.

Speaking on ARD television's Bericht aus Berlin program, Merkel said that "a classic haircut of 30, 40 per cent of debt cannot happen in a currency union."

But Merkel, who persuaded German lawmakers on Friday to give their overwhelming backing to another financial rescue package, suggested that she was open to discussing ways to lessen the burden on Athens.

She said, for example, Greece previously has been given more favourable interest rates, time extensions and other relief

"We can talk about such things again," she said, but added such talks could only begin after details of Greece's bailout program are finalized.

Though the broad outlines of the Greek bailout were agreed last Monday by the eurozone's 19 leaders, the details are now being negotiated.

The discussions, expected to last four weeks, will include economic targets and reforms deemed necessary in return for an anticipated 85 billion euros ($93 billion US) over three years.

> German Chancellor Angela Merkel on the possibility of a "Grexit," which would see Greece leave the EU.

Merkel pushed for them to move as quickly as possible, saying that it was important that "the country gets back on both feet quickly."

Asked about Finance Minister Wolfgang Schaeuble's suggestion last week that Greece could take a five-year "timeout" from the shared euro currency to address its economic problems, Merkel said the idea of a "Grexit" was no longer on the table.

"The option was discussed but we decided on this option, which was quite apparently the right one for all the other (eurozone nations)," she said.

Talking to Parliament on Friday, Merkel said the alternative to the new rescue package "would not be a timeout from the euro that would be orderly ... but predictable chaos."

German Vice Chancellor Sigmar Gabriel, who is also economy minister and chairman of Merkel's junior coalition partner, the Social Democrats, on Sunday criticized Schaeuble for bringing up the idea of a timeout, saying "it wasn't prudent to make this suggestion as a German suggestion."

He suggested there was a disconnect between Merkel and Schaeuble, but the finance minister downplayed any differences. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

$93 billion

The coming four weeks of negotiations are expected to set out the economic targets and reforms Greece must follow in order to receive $93 billion US (85 billion euros) in bailout funds.

Greek banks reopen

Greek banks are reopening today after a forced three-week closure but restrictions on cash withdrawals will remain.

In a decree Saturday, the Greek government kept the daily cash withdrawal limit at 60 euros ($65 US) but added a weekly limit of up to 420 euros ($455 US).

Bank customers will still not be able to cash cheques, only deposit them into their accounts.

The decree also pushes back the deadline for filing income tax returns, which now becomes Aug. 26.

Greece closed its banks beginning June 29 to prevent a bank run after the European Central Bank did not increase emergency funding as Greece's second bailout expired.

After the Greek Parliament passed an agreement Thursday to seek a third bailout, the ECB raised its emergency funding to the cash-strapped Greek banks.

On Friday, German lawmakers voted 439-119 in favour of opening discussions on Greece's third bailout.

Following the vote the European Union decided to release a short-term loan of 7.16 billion euros ($7.75 billion US) to help Greece pay back a loan due Monday to the ECB.

The Greek Parliament will vote on further austerity measures Wednesday.

THE BIG POLL: EDGY ART

The art is about symmetry as a symbol of beauty and purity. But the symmetry of the human body in the explicit images of artist Rosalie Maheux's collage, Sacred Circle VI, has the power to offend as well as inspire. You don't always get your way in democracy

INSIDE THE PERIMETER

Shannon VanRaes

Democracy. It's a wonderful thing. But for some people it can be a difficult concept to understand — people like Russ Wyatt.

Perhaps drawing inspiration from the nearby Fringe Festival, the Transcona city councillor's flair for the dramatic reached new heights last week. After requests to debate some of the proposed amendments on the city's pedestrian and cycling strategy were not granted, he stormed out of council chambers, refusing to return for the vote.

His thespian repertoire didn't stop there, however.

He continued onto the mayor's office where he taped the unheard motions to the door with the words "democracy denied" scrawled on them.

The stunt has left me wondering if Coun,Wyatt seriously believes this constitutes a denial of democracy, or if he so undervalues the concept that he's prepared to use it as a prop in his continuing farce.

In some places, people are subjected to rule without representation. Some people are ruled solely by monarchs. Others are ruled by dictators, who seized power by military might. Some individuals are struggling to survive civil wars not of their making. This is democracy denied.

In some countries, people elect a leader and see them deposed by their unsuccessful opponent. In others, people cast ballots made meaningless by corruption. This is democracy denied.

There are people across the world who can't speak freely because of their gender, sexual orientation, race or religion. This is democracy denied.

People who are disqualified from voting because circumstances left them without government-approved identification — they have been denied democracy. Wyatt has not been denied democracy.

A council of 15 elected representatives voting on a proposal that was years in the making is actually a pretty good example of democracy in action.

Like all democratic institutions, our city hall isn't perfect — in fact there is much room for improvement — but it's still a functioning democracy. It's important to add that democracy doesn't mean getting what you want all the time.

If all councillors chose to express their discontent in the same way as Coun. Wyatt, city hall would really cease to function. Imagine if every time a motion was opposed, councillors stormed out to engage in performance art. Nothing would get done, and city business would grind to a halt.

If all councillors expressed their discontent in the same way as Coun. Wyatt, city hall would cease to function.

Democracy requires respect and compromise. It also required participation, something Wyatt refused to do by storming out of council chambers.

Economies of scale and animal rights can coexist on our farms

Sonia Faruqi has gone places you couldn't go, even if you wanted to.

She's visited the farms of Ontario. She's visited farms in Malaysia, Mexico, and Singapore, too — all of which led to her charming and disturbing new book, Project Animal Farm.

Grocery shopping, for me, is tinged with mystery. Where did the meat or eggs or yogurt come from? How was the animal raised and killed? What was it fed? And if I knew all of that, would I still think $12 is a great price for a chicken?

Most of us cannot find answers to those questions just by asking. Agriculture is a rather secretive industry, and farms are not easy places to visit (some factory farmers don't even let other farmers see their operations).

Enter the pleasant, insistent Faruqi.

Once a Wall Street banker, Faruqi's fateful visit to an organic dairy farm outside Toronto turned a financier into an investigative journalist, and a city girl into an animal-rights champion.

That is not to say Project Animal Farm is a militant call to vegetarianism or veganism.

There's nothing militant about it. The book is like sitting down for a cup of tea with a friend, only to be swallowed into a long story filled with quirky characters and random encounters, an escapade through farms and the people who work them.

The "kind, knowledgeable and respectful" Dr. Shan in Malaysia. Charlie, the "lanky as a lamppost" pig farmer. The warm, belligerent turkey and egg farmer Brick Roberts who thinks laws against drinking and driving are "communist," and who burns his garbage to reduce landfill waste.

It's a book that can read like a comedy, but the stakes couldn't be higher.

As the book shows in gruesome detail, the factory production of meat and animal products is anything but humane. It's also a major contributor to global warming and can even be a health hazard for workers. Even our efforts to buy organic, free-range or vegetarian-fed products don't necessarily coincide with well treated animals.

But Faruqi's book also shows farming doesn't have to be this way. Not all big farms are bad. Economies of scale and animal rights can coexist.

The book exists outside the activist exposés and agriculture lobby groups. It's a thankfully propaganda-free addition to the highly polarized debate over farming and animal rights. It's a good read, and for those who care how our food is farmed, a very good place to start.

Amy on going back to BoJack

BOJACK HORSEMAN

Amy Sedaris sees acting in mew light after animated hit

Matt Prigge
Metro in New York City

Amy Sedaris isn't crazy about watching herself or even listening to herself. "I hate all of it," she tells us. One exception is BoJack Horseman. On the Netflix show — whose second season launched on Friday — she plays Princess Carolyn, the manager and the on-again-off-again friend-with-benefits of its titular character, a former cheesy '80s sitcom star turned self-hating alcoholic fumbling through attempted comebacks, voiced by Will Arnett.

"A character like Princess Carolyn I don't mind listening to at all. It all depends on the project. But I like to watch this," Sedaris says.

She admits to feeling panicky with other projects, "because you can't change it. It's the same with the cookbook I did (I Like You: Hospitality Under the Influence). It's hard to go back and read it because I can't change anything. It drives me crazy."

Sedaris says she hasn't yet watched the second season, but then she didn't watch the first till after it was out, just like everyone else. She even learned new things about how to do Princess Carolyn's voice after actually seeing it.

ANTHROPOMORPHIC
He's a horse, and she's a cat, but that's how it rolls in BoJack Horseman's world, where people and sentient animals cohabitate and often hook up.

> It's strange not knowing what's going on around you
> Amy Sedaris on being a voice star

"Once the first season came out, I saw that she moved more," she explains. "It's something you have to have in the back of your head. Maybe she doesn't talk too fast because she's moving really slow — little things like that."

The detachment from knowing what's exactly going on in the background of scenes — along with recording without the other actors — can be disorienting.

"It's like, 'Oh, I wish I had known there was a tree behind her because I would have made a comment about that. It's strange not knowing what's going on around you. If it was live action, you can take it all in. Here it's just your voice. But they're good at directing you."

It extends to the table reads, too. Most of the cast meets up in person in Los Angeles, but Sedaris phones in from New York.

"It's weird to do it over the phone while they're all in L.A.," she admits. "It's just so funny to be alone in my apartment listening to them. It's like sitting back and observing it without really seeing it."

Still, the detachment isn't as intense as it is for the animated films she's done, including Shrek the Third and Puss in Boots, where there are sometimes huge gaps in between when you record, even a year. "You always forget what you did," she says. "You go in so many times. With this you just go in once and record it. I like this process a lot."

Sedaris' distinctive bray has gotten her her share of animation work, including stints on Bob's Burgers, American Dad and Doc MacStuffins, in addition to live-action appearances on Broad City and Unbreakable Kimmy Schmidt.

She's never yet appeared on one of her longtime favourites: "The Simpsons, of course, is the best. I'm so glad it's still around. It's never going to die. I hope it never dies."

We don't have time to bug her about the topics that most people bug her about — her cult show Strangers with Candy and, speaking of which, her Candy co-conspirator Stephen Colbert and his forthcoming late night show — but do ask that, considering how BoJack is recorded, if she met a certain super-famous, for now super-secret guest voice star, about whom we'll keep mum.

"Oh, I know him very well," she says, laughing.

"I'd almost rather meet him this way. You don't want to meet them in person. It's too intimidating and scary. It's like, let's just do this on opposite coasts. Perfect."

Bill Nye the Science Guy adds emoji whiz to his repertoire

Bill Nye the Science Guy uses colourful emojis to teach science in a whole new way. CONTRIBUTED

Smiley face molecules? Rocket ships showing how fast the earth is heating up? Learning about science has never been more fun.

Energy management corporation General Electric has teamed up with Bill Nye, everyone's favorite Science Guy, for a series of educational YouTube videos, and he's using the most popular form of tech speak to teach students about science: emojis.

#EmojiScience breaks down complex scientific subjects — like evolution, super materials, holograms and climate change — using, you guessed it, emojis. The five-part series was inspired by last year's Emoji Science Lab pop-up lab at NYU, where thousands of students sent their favourite emojis to GE via Snapchat and received personalized science experiment videos in return.

"Snapchat, Facebook, Twitter — we're trying to reach young fans where they are already, and video is an important component of that," says Sydney Lestrud, GE's global brand marketing manager who masterminded the project.

"Bill (Nye) is a great educator, simplifying science and making it fun, and he was open to a new way of doing that."

"We wanted to use emoji(s) to tell stories in different ways," says Lestrud. "Not just to explain what GE is doing but to inspire a younger generation to want to learn more about (science)."

In addition to the webisodes — which you can find on YouTube — there's also an Emoji Table of Elements, which teaches students about key innovative moments throughout science history. In fact, GE is currently working with the U.S. National Science Foundation to create emoji science lesson plans for the classroom. And why stop there?

Says Lestrud: "Educators, tech influencers, museums … they're all looking for different types of curriculum we can 'emoji-fy.'"

Your money talks, so listen

Take a hard look at what your budget says about you

I know how to eat healthy. I can talk your ear off about portion sizes and eliminating empty calories. My shopping cart doesn't lie though: It's BBQ season. Massive chunks of sizzling red meat are calling my name, even though I know I should only enjoy them in moderation.

In a similar fashion, taking an honest look at your budget can be a harsh look in the mirror. A lot of people know the lingo of personal finance and can repeat money commandments such as, "It's important to save for a rainy day," or, "Yeah, I intend to start paying myself first … as soon as I can." Yet our budgets often tell a very different story than the clichés we espouse.

Everyone has a budget, even if they don't realize it. If you refuse to write your spending down (or type it in into your tablet, smartphone, etc.) I call it a "budget by omission." This type of budget obviously says a lot about your level of commitment to really taking control of your financial life.

If you're in this camp you can take some solace in the fact that as a Canadian, you likely have a lot of company. Plenty of folks scrape by with a budget by omission until creditors come knocking or an emergency hits and unpleasant realities have to be confronted.

Once you take your first steps away from your budget by omission and figure out where you are spending your money (as opposed to where you say you're spending your money), the initial unpleasantness is a small price to pay for the accompanying stabilization and improvement of your life.

Your budget should be a reflection of what is truly important to you. If you currently don't have one, you're likely sacrificing something you truly enjoy for something that doesn't actually increase your happiness very much.

Is premium coffee really that important? Maybe it is — nothing wrong with that.

Maybe you're a rabid hockey fan, but are those season tickets really important enough to sacrifice 30 per cent of your paycheque? Could you split them with some buddies? Would you get nearly as much enjoyment out of 20 games a year as 40?

There is no right or wrong way to budget. No one can tell you what your priorities should be, but if everything is a priority, then nothing is. When I look at your budget, I should be able to tell to a large degree what you're passionate about and what matters most to you. If this isn't the case, then you might want to ask yourself what your budget is saying about you.

Bill Cosby paid women after sex

SCANDAL

Fallen star says in old court records he was trying to keep affairs secret

Bill Cosby, in sworn testimony a decade ago, said he had paid women after sex to keep the affairs from his wife, suggested he was skilled at understanding nonverbal cues for sexual consent and called one of his accusers a liar.

The New York Times reported the revelations Saturday after obtaining a copy of a transcript from a deposition Cosby gave in a lawsuit filed by a former Temple University employee who alleges he drugged and molested her.

According to excerpts from the deposition released a month ago, and first obtained by The Associated Press, Cosby admitted he procured Quaaludes with the intent of giving them to young women he wanted to have sex with.

The Times, citing the transcript, reports that Cosby told lawyers for Andrea Constand, who worked at Temple in Philadelphia and brought the suit, that he was a "pretty decent reader of people and their emotions in these romantic sexual things."

He said he offered to pay for Constand's education and paid another woman whom he had met in 1976. He said he funnelled money to one of the women he had sex with through his agent so his wife wouldn't find out.

Cosby's publicist, David Brokaw, did not immediately return a message seeking comment late Saturday.

> My wife would not know it was because Andrea and I had had sex.
> Bill Cosby, in decade-old deposition

Although Constand never sought any money from Cosby, the comedian said he figured his wife would have known he was helping her with furthering her education but said, "My wife would not know it was because Andrea and I had had sex," according to the newspaper.

Constand's case was settled on confidential terms.

Cosby has denied accusations made by dozens of women who claim he sexually assaulted them. He has never been charged with a crime, but the accusations have shattered Cosby's good-guy, fatherly image.

At points during the deposition, Cosby also described his sexual encounters with the women in detail.

The deposition paints Cosby as emotionally charming, and he also spoke about disregarding relationships to pursue other women.

Irish amateur among those at 12 under, Spieth one back Raging wind off the Eden Estuary caused a 10-hour delay Saturday and forced a Monday finish to the tournament.

Jordan Spieth was one shot out of the lead and one round away from the third leg of the Grand Slam. Not since Bobby Jones has an amateur won the British Open, and then along came Paul Dunne with a bogey-free performance Sunday at St. Andrews that gave him a share of the lead.

When a shootout at St. Andrews ended Sunday, 14 players were separated by three shots. Half of them were major champions.

Jordan Spieth GETTY IMAGES

Even for a place packed with centuries of history, this British Open offered endless possibilities.

Dunne, the 22-year-old from Ireland, was impervious to everything around him and soaked up a day he won't soon forget in his round of 6-under 66. Louis Oosthuizen, the last player to lift the claret jug on the Old Course in 2010, made three birdies over his last five holes for a 67. Jason Day had a share of the 54-hole lead for the second straight major with a 67, and this time he doesn't have to worry about vertigo symptoms he dealt with at the U.S. Open.

They were at 12-under 204.

"It's surreal I'm leading the Open, but I can easily believe that I shot the three scores that I shot," Dunne said. "If we were playing an amateur event here, I wouldn't be too surprised by the scores I shot. It's just lucky that it happens to be in the biggest event in the world.

"Hopefully, I can do it again tomorrow," he said. "But whether I do or not, I'll survive either way."

Such an opportunity might not come around again for Spieth. Only three other players won the first two legs of the Grand Slam since the modern version began in 1960. Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus and Tiger Woods only got one shot at it, and none ever started the final round of the British Open so close to the lead.

And so it was Spieth, a 21-year-old Texan with an uncanny sense of occasion, who brought the grey, old town to life in a mixture of sunshine and rain.

After punching his golf bag in frustration at the turn, he ran off three straight birdies on the back nine and kept alive his hopes of becoming the first player to sweep the four professional majors in one year. He finished with a 66.

Ben Hogan in 1953 was the only other player to win the Masters, U.S. Open and British Open in the same year.

With a one-shot lead after powering his way around St. Andrews for 36 holes, Dustin Johnson was the last player in the field to make a birdie Sunday, and that wasn't until the 15th hole. He followed with three straight bogeys for a 75 to fall five shots behind.

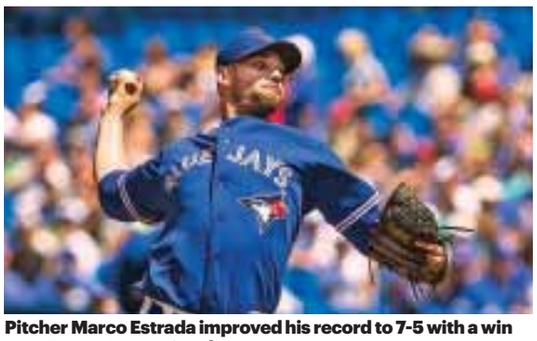
Estrada, Blue Jays leave Rays dead in the water



Pitcher Marco Estrada improved his record to 7-5 with a win over Tampa Bay on Sunday. AARON VINCENT ELKAIM/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Marco Estrada offers a change of pace for the Toronto Blue Jays.

Moved from the bullpen to bolster the starting rotation early in May, the right-hander has provided innings and excellence for the Jays this season.

Estrada was at it again Sunday, using his changeup effectively in facing only one batter above the minimum over eight innings as Toronto shutout the Tampa Bay Rays 4-0.

"He (Estrada) was as good as you could be tonight," Blue Jays manager John Gibbons said. "He's got that knack of making that big pitch, getting that big out when you have to have it. He's very composed. You can't rattle him. He's got that equalizing pitch, that changeup. That's the pitch that got him to the big leagues. That's the difference maker for him. He'll use it at any time."

SUNDAY In Toronto

BLUE JAYS	RAYS

Chris Colabello and Jose Bautista each hit two-run homers to make sure Estrada's effort was not in vain as Toronto finally figured out a way to beat Rays starter Chris Archer.

Estrada (7-5) held Tampa to three hits with no walks and five strikeouts to win for the sixth time in his past eight starts.

Archer (9-7) allowed five hits, one walk and two runs while striking out six in seven innings. Archer won his first three starts against the Jays this season with a 0.54 earned-run average.

Greipel sprints way to third TDF stage victory

Andre Greipel took his third stage victory of this Tour de France by winning a bunch sprint at the end of Stage 15 on Sunday, while Britain's Chris Froome remained in control of the overall race lead on a day when French police boosted security around his team.

Greipel, the Lotto-Soudal rider from Germany, powered to the line at Valence.

Police stationed half a dozen officers around Froome's Team Sky bus at the start after the race leader complained the previous day that a spectator shouting "Doper!" in French hurled a cup of urine at him on Stage 14.

Busch takes checkered flag for second straight week

Kyle Busch continues to find victory lane and is moving closer to landing a spot in the Chase.

Busch's dominant comeback rolled on Sunday at New Hampshire Motor Speedway when he won for the second straight weekend and for the third time in the last four NASCAR Sprint Cup races.

He broke his right leg and left foot in a crash the day before the season-opening Daytona 500 and missed the year's first 11 races. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Murray leads Britain to Davis Cup semifinals

A tearful Andy Murray celebrated taking Britain to its first Davis Cup semifinal for more than three decades on Sunday, sealing an emotional 3-1 victory over France to line up a home series against Australia.

The Australians rallied from 2-0 down Friday to edge Kazakhstan 3-2 on Sunday, with Lleyton Hewitt winning the decider.

Argentina will visit Belgium in the other semifinal, after the South Americans wrapped up a 4-1 victory over Serbia and Belgium completed a clean sweep with a 5-0 win over Canada.

PAN AM 2015

Chef de mission says team on target after Week 1

Curt Harnett has pushed his voice to the breaking point cheering on the Canadian contingent.
STEVE RUSSELL/TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Curt Harnett's voice was raspy, so he was trying to take it easy over the weekend. He hiked up and down the stairs at Toronto's Varsity Stadium, tossing pins into the crowd at the Pan American Games archery competition, in between waving a huge Canadian flag.

But Canada's chef de mission — and the team's head cheerleader — was otherwise keeping quiet.

"Still able to talk (barely), which is a good thing," Harnett said. "I kind of maybe overdid it a little bit.

"I've had a couple of days where I've tried to stay quiet, and the crowd's doing their job. But I can't contain myself, I'm emotionally invested in all of this, the success of our athletes is important to me as a person, it's a sense of pride that I can't seem to shake."

A little over a week into the Pan American Games, there has been plenty of reason to be proud and vocal.

Canada topped the medal table through most of Week 1 before falling to second Saturday night. The United States led with 50 gold and 135 total medals. Canada had 48 gold and 122 medals through Saturday. Brazil was a distant third in both, with 28 gold and 86 medals overall.

But Canada boosted its gold medal total to 53 heading into Sunday's late evening events.

Evan Dunfee started things off with gold in the men's 20-kilometre race walk. His teammate Inaki Gomez captured the silver.

Canada had another 1-2 finish in the women's track cycling sprint, with Monique Sullivan defeating fellow Calgary cyclist Kate O'Brien in the final.

Jazmyne Denhollander paddled to gold in the women's K1 whitewater kayak, and Olympic champion Rosie MacLennan defended her Pan Am title in women's trampoline.

The Canadians, who came in with a goal of a top-2 finish, have never won the Pan Am Games. Canada's best finish was second in Winnipeg in 1967. But as the host country, Canada compiled its largest — and arguably strongest — team ever, of 719 athletes, and the results are showing.

"The performance of the team is on par with what our targets were ... and of course knowing that, with the number of athletes that we were bringing, specifically A-team athletes, that performance on the field of play would be top shelf and put them on the podium," said Harnett, a three-time Olympic medallist in track cycling.

"I think the more exciting thing is the athletes who have risen to the occasion, have taken advantage of the home court, homefield advantage and the home crowd, and raised their game, and captured gold medals," he added. "So it's a great combination."

Table tennis gets rare spotlight in Toronto

The applause from several hundred fans in the packed bleachers, most of them hollering for Canadian Mo Zhang, was enough to put her nerves on high alert. But she needed to be calm, so she pretended she wasn't at home.

"Think we are not in Canada, I am playing in another country," Zhang said later, with a laugh. "Just relax, keep thinking this is just a normal competition."

It isn't normal, though. This is table tennis at the Pan Am Games, a hot ticket among the modest but lively legion of supporters who take the sport very seriously. A full house in the hangar-like Markham Pan Am Centre roared and sighed in unison throughout Sunday's women's and men's team openers.

Zhang, the 26-year-old anchor of Canada's women's crew and reigning Pan Am singles champion, led teammates Anqi Luo and Alicia Côté to a tight victory over Guatemala, three games to two. The men's squad, led by Ottawa-based veteran Eugene Wang, swept the Guatemalans 3-0. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

Experience better than medals for volleyballers?

For Canada's female beach volleyballers, the silver lining will come off the court.

The Toronto-based pair of Melissa Humana-Paredes and Taylor Pischke dropped their semifinal match to Cuba on Sunday, 21-18, 17-21, 15-7. They will play for bronze but, like a lot of young athletes who have descended on Toronto for these Games, this is instead a golden chance to gain experience. Both Humana-Paredes and Pischke are 22.

"They're on the 2016 (Ol pathway but we're looking for really big things from them for 2020, so this is all learning," coach Steve Anderson said.

Late Paredes kick completes 16pt comeback over Winnipeg

Stampeders kicker Rene Paredes, centre, celebrates his game-winning field goal against the Blue Bombers with teammates Drew Tate and Freddie Bishop on Saturday in Calgary. JEFF MCINTOSH/THE CANADIAN PRESS

Juwan Simpson preserved a big win for the Stampeders on Saturday with a key interception late in the game.

The veteran linebacker picked off an errant pass by quarterback Drew Willy with 23 seconds remaining as Calgary edged the Winnipeg Blue Bombers 26-25 in front of 29,255 fans at McMahon Stadium.

"I just happened to be in the right place at the right time," said Simpson, who also had four tackles. "It felt good to be able to seal it for my team. We've been in this situation before. There was no panic by anybody on the team. We just keep fighting through. These are the games that you cherish because you realize how hard you fought to come back and get that win."

The Stamps (3-1) erased a 16-point deficit and won the game thanks to a 40-yard field goal by Rene Paredes, which was followed by Simpson's heroics.

"Fortunately we made a play at the end to seal the game," said Calgary coach and general manager John Hufnagel. "(Parades) hit a big one. We needed it."

Following the game-winning kick by Paredes at 12:46 of the fourth quarter, Winnipeg's Liram Hajrullahu had a chance to put the Bombers back out in front but he missed a 52-yard field goal attempt.

"I'm trying to do my best out there and fell a little short today," said Hajrullahu. "I'm going to learn from this and I'm going to be better for next week for my teammates and my coaches."

Bo Levi Mitchell, who started at QB for Calgary, threw a touchdown pass to Eric Rogers, while his backup Drew Tate had a rushing TD. Adam Thibault scored another touchdown for Calgary after picking up a blocked punt and running it into the end zone, while Paredes also kicked a pair of singles.

Willy threw a pair of long touchdown passes to Clarence Denmark and Darvin Adams, while backup quarterback Brian Brohm ran for another TD. Hajrullahu kicked a field goal and added two singles for the Bombers (2-2).

"It all stings," said Winnipeg coach Mike O'Shea. "It's sickening. We've got a team like Calgary on the ropes and we let them off the hook. We're not smart enough yet. We need to play smarter football and they all know it."

The Bombers jumped out to an early 8-0 lead thanks to a 93-yard single by Hajrullahu followed by a 75-yard touchdown catch by Denmark.

After Brohm plunged into the end zone for a one-yard TD to cap off an eight-play, 53-yard drive, Hajrullahu booted an 80-yard single to put Winnipeg up 16-0.

Late in the first quarter, Calgary's Randy Chevrier recovered a fumble by Bombers punt returner Troy Stoudermire at the Winnipeg 30-yard line.

> Stampeders' linebacker Juwan Simpson

Three plays later, Rogers caught a 19-yard touchdown pass from Mitchell, who hooked up with the same target in the end zone for a two-point convert.

The Stamps then settled for a single point early in the second quarter when Paredes missed a 26-yard field goal.

Adam Berger, who earlier forced the fumble by Stoudermire, then blocked a punt by Hajrullahu and Thibault promptly picked up the ball and ran it in for a 10-yard score. Parades made up for missing the convert by booting a 95-yard single on the ensuing kickoff to tie up the score at 16-16.

The Stamps took their first lead of the game at 12:35 of the third quarter when Tate ran for a one-yard touchdown to cap off an impressive 11-play, 107-yard drive. Running back Jon Cornish carried the ball four times for 66 yards on the drive.

The Bombers answered right back when Adams caught a pass from Willy at mid-field and ran the rest of the way for a 79-yard score. After Hajrullahu missed the convert, the Stamps were left with a one-point lead heading into the final quarter.

Hajrullahu then booted a 49-yard field goal at 8:07 of the fourth to put Winnipeg back up 25-23 before Parades answered back with the game-winning kick. THE CANADIAN PRESS

NFL

Vikings to open $1B clear-roofed venue

Sixty per cent of the Minnesota Vikings' new colossal venue will be covered solely by some 248,000 square feet of ethylene-tetra-fluoro-ethylene. This transparent material called ETFE is a space-age product, scientifically categorized as a copolymer plastic, lets in light like glass would. It's just lighter, cheaper and cleaner.

Public financial support for the project was never going to prevail unless the facility was usable year-round for a variety of events, so an open-air stadium wasn't a viable option. The retractable roof would've cost more, but the Vikings realized through researching other NFL venues that roofs are rarely retracted enough to make them worth the extra expense. This will cost a mere $1.076 billion.

So the Vikings entered a new era of transparency: U.S. Bank Stadium will open next season, boasting the only ETFE roof on a sports facility in the United States. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Blatter and Platini's election meeting

Sepp Blatter hosted Michel Platini and football's other continental presidents on Sunday, in their first formal meeting since the FIFA president announced he would leave office amid a corruption crisis.

The meeting at FIFA headquarters was to help prepare for an executive committee session on Monday to set a date for the presidential election to replace Blatter. Platini, the UEFA president, is currently favoured to win a ballot that requires a four-month campaign by FIFA election rules.

When the presidents' group last met on May 28, one day after senior FIFA officials were arrested at the same luxury downtown hotel, Platini urged his mentor-turned-adversary to resign.

Blatter refused and was re-elected the next day for a fifth four-year term. Days later he promised to leave office under pressure from American and Swiss federal investigations of corruption implicating FIFA. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

IT'S ALL IN THE STARS by Sally Brompton

Aries March 21 - April 20
You have done a lot of things for loved ones in recent weeks but as from Thursday, when the Sun changes signs, you must start doing more things for yourself.

Taurus April 21 - May 21
You've been so busy of late that someone is beginning to think you have forgotten about them. It isn't remotely true and you should do something today that convinces them of that fact.

Gemini May 22 - June 21
Try not to take life so seriously this week. You will look back and realize just how silly it was to get annoyed about things which are of no real importance at all.

Cancer June 22 - July 23
The Sun leaves your birth sign on Thursday, which means you still have three days to get started on a project you have been putting off for ages.

Leo July 24 - Aug. 23
You should be counting your blessings now as life is good and about to get a whole lot better. Keep thinking positive and telling yourself that you are destined to do something special with your life — because you are.

Virgo Aug. 24 - Sept. 23
Anyone who tries to take liberties today will get a shock. You are in no mood for nonsense, not even from those think they have the right to order you around. Make sure it's a mistake they regret.

Libra Sept. 24 - Oct. 23
Recent weeks have not been easy but they have certainly toughened you up. On Thursday you will be in a position to turn your experiences to your long-term advantage.

Scorpio Oct. 24 - Nov. 22
Over the next few days start thinking of ways you can impress people in positions of power. Tell them you are willing to shoulder more responsibility — assuming that's what you want.

Sagittarius Nov. 23 - Dec. 21
You have been far too suspicious of late and it has prevented you from taking risks. Maybe that's no bad thing, seeing as how reckless you can be at times, but in a matter of days you will be back to normal!

Capricorn Dec. 22 - Jan. 20
If you believe a friend or colleague is making a poor job of something on purpose then by all means have a go at them. On the other hand, your standards can be very high, so maybe you are expecting too much.

Aquarius Jan. 21 - Feb. 19
The Sun moves into your opposite sign this week, making it a good time to look back over the past six months and see how far you have come.

Pisces
Feb. 20 - March 20
No matter how dynamic you have been recently, you must now slow down a bit. You have pushed boundaries both physically and emotionally and you can't keep pushing forever.
